

Policy Name	ASSESSMENT POLICY
Policy Number	A002_PO_HE (Academic)
Purpose	This policy states the principles of assessment for student work within Higher Education courses and subjects at Whitehouse Institute of Design, Australia, (Whitehouse).
Scope	This policy applies to all subjects in all accredited Higher Education courses across all campuses and is binding on all students and staff.
Policy Statement	Whitehouse sees learning and assessment as part of a continuous feedback loop: the assessment provides information on what learning has taken place to foster future learning. This assessment policy supports learning and teaching practice. Whitehouse defines and develops learning outcomes and assessment criteria to confirm students' achievements and success at qualification award levels as specified by sector standards and the Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF). Assessment measures student performance against stated learning outcomes, to promote learning, progression, improve student attributes, and achieve graduate capabilities. The principles of assessment require that: I. standards or levels of expected performance should be described for assessment tasks in sufficient detail that students can improve the quality of their work II. standards should typically be defined in the context of the discipline, course, or level of the subject III. standards should be benchmarked against comparable disciplinary and/or professional standards, with Whitehouse and beyond IV. assessment in each subject should involve at least two types of assessment instruments. V. Assessment method types may vary but should be aligned to the subject's learning outcomes and assessment criteria. VI. assessment methods and criteria are based on academic achievement and align to specified learning outcomes for each subject in Higher Education programs VII. assessment methods include provision of constructive and timely feedback to provide students with a measure of their progress against the stated learning outcomes and feedback to assist in the preparation of future assessment tasks VIII. assessment should be sufficient, fair, valid, equitable and objective IX. assessment should be moderated and validated using appropriate methods to ensure parity and consistency in assessor judgements. X. staff peer review and moderation of assessment tasks should be used to ensure the tasks are appropriate for the targeted learning outcomes, and conform with the assessment policy and procedure XI. students should have the opportunity for formative practice or experience on each type of instrument that is used to determine grades. This may include teacher feedback, student peer review or student self-review activities.

	XII. summative assessment leads to achievement of subject (results) and course completion leading to the issue of a graded Testamur and Transcript of Academic Record. XIII. penalties apply for late submissions, non-submissions, academic misconduct, and non-attendance (refer Section 7 of the Procedure)

Definitions	Key terms: Assessment, learning outcomes, moderation, validation, benchmarking, formative, summative, plagiarism, adjustments, results, Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL). Assessment: the process of collecting evidence of a student’s knowledge, skills, and attributes in relation to specified criteria in a subject. The judgment made of the level of a student’s achievement provides their result grade for that subject. Accredited course: any of the higher education delivered by Whitehouse, that leads to a nationally recognised qualification. Student Learning Outcomes: student work is assessed against specified learning outcomes (a standard) identified for each subject.

	Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF): the guidelines established for learning outcomes, knowledge, and skill levels for defined qualification levels of education in Australia. Formative Assessment: occurs during the process of skills and knowledge acquisition, it does not contribute to the final grade. It is a type of assessment used to assist in measuring a student's progress to date and identifying requirements still to be met. Summative Assessment: occurs at the conclusion of a period of study in subjects of learning and results that contribute to the final grade for subjects. Result grade: The result recorded for an individual assessment, overall subject or course, based on a "marks range" cut-offs from 0-100% and represented by a code or symbol denoting the grade level (refer Attachment A below) Moderation: the review of assessment decision-making to ensure consistency in grading student learning against specified outcomes (or rubrics). Validation: the process by which assessment tools and assessment evidence are reviewed with respect to the AQF requirements and standards established for each level. Benchmarking: is a process that compares assessments against a set of standards or benchmarks for the purpose of improvement. Academic Integrity: 'the expectation that teachers, students, researchers and all members of the academic community act with honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility.' (TEQSA: What is academic integrity?) Breaching academic integrity is also known as 'academic misconduct' or 'academic dishonesty'.
